SUMMER

KNOW YOUR ENEMIES

In The Ancient Art of War, you plan and conduct entire military campaigns, not simply battles. You choose the makeup of the army, its weapons, its position, its marches, even its battle formations.

You direct troop movements on detailed campaign maps — then zoom into command each battle on the actual terrain the enemy engages you.

Every variable military strategy comes into play. Do you attack the enemy directly? Or do you try to cut his supply lines? Do you put your troops on a fast march to take the enemy by surprise, only to find them exhausted for the battle at hand?

You'll find out what its like to make decisions like these in the heat of battle, because The Ancient Art of War is fought in real time.

You can also try your hand against some of the most brilliant military minds that ever lived — the mythical Athena, Julius Caesar, Genghis Khan and Napoleon, to name a few. Then, when you are ready for the supreme test, take on the Chinese master of masters himself, Sun Tzu, author of the original 2500-year-old military magnum opus. The Art of War.

But if you want to create your own military compaigns, there is a games generator. You determine everything from troop strength and position, to the tiniest details of terrain.

So, do YOU think your're smart enough, quick enough, innovative enough to claim your place in the military annals? The Ancient Art of War is your chance to find out.

FLYING HIGH WITH JET

Jet is a flight simulator game bound to take executive game-playing to even greater heights this summer! If you are a high-flying executive, or a home owner of an IBM PC keen to flex your muscles as a fighter jock, Jet could be the answer to all your dreams.

Jet lets you fly either an F-16 Fighting Falcon or an F-18 Hornet, providing you with full-color, 3D out-of-the-cockpit views of all the action. You have a number of options which cover land/sea strikes and dogfights, bound to test your endurance and performance under different and often difficult conditions.

You can practice take-offs and landings, perform aerial stunts, and test your general flying abilities. In dogfights, as the name implies, you have to pit yourself against The Bad Guys in the sky, while the bombing missions take you over very heavily defended enemy territory.

If you are hit during any of this action, and can bail out, you float gently to earth, only to be sent aloft again in a fresh fighter plane. But if you blow three fighters, you're history. Jet is bound to have you working hard for your fun!

COLOR ME WITH DAZZLE DRAW

Dazzle Draw, from Broderbund Software, allows you to paint in more colors than you ever thought possible on a home computer. What's more, you can even do it black and white with Macintosh computer-like clarity.

Drawing in 16 colors with a colored marker is fun! But if that doesn't take your fancy, you can paint with a brush in a variety of patterns, either pre-selected or individually designed. Or what about spray painting? It's all possible, with Dazzle Draw.

What about drawing boxes, ovals, lines, circles, and stretching them like a rubber band to get just the sizes and shapes you want? Dazzle Draw lets you. You can even zoom in on small areas of the screen to get at those difficult to-do designs.

And when you have finished, you can cut and paste your work on the computer.

pfs:BEST SELLERS

The pfs:Best Sellers package is designed to give you a real choice over AppleWorks . . . and what's more it fills all the gaps left by the AppleWorks program.

The pfs package incorporates pfs:File, pfs:Report and pfs:Write. Unlike AppleWorks, Best Sellers provides you with an easy-to-use, powerful mail merge facility, and a powerful, versatile information management and summary reporting system.

The pfs range of software, from Software Publishing Corp, of Mountain View, California, also gives you great graphics capabilities and solid communications.

pfs:File is a file format you can design on the screen as you go, and is designed to suit your particular needs. Significantly larger records can be built with pfs:File than with AppleWorks. pfs:File can also accommodate about 1000 records on a 64K-byte file. The larger files can hold about 3200 items (or fields), each with 1679 characters.

pfs:Report is easier to use than alternatives, and offers more versatility than AppleWorks. pfs:Report allows you to present quality summary reports with totals, averages and counts on columns, automatic column alignment, subsorting and keyword sorts, and extensive automatic report formatting.

The pfs:Write part of the package provides you with a full-function word processor where you get what you see on screen. In other words, what appears on your screen is exactly the same when you print it out, including boldfacing, headings, footnotes and page breaks.

pfs:Write also allows you to address an envelope and print selected pages of your documents.

Getting up and running with your pfs:Best Sellers package is easier every time you use it!

SOFTWARE

ACTIVISION
HOME COMPUTER SOFTWARE

though Activision has consistently delivered ome of the world's best computer games, is summer's releases are set to become mash hits!

This latest swag includes Rescue on Fractalus, The Great American Cross-Country Road Race, Tour de France, The Little Computer People Project, Hacker, Fast Tracks and Ballblazer.

Combining strategy, action and flight simulation, Rescue on Fractalus can make you the hero . . . if you're good enough! Your fellow pilots have all been shot down over the hostile planet Fractalus, and unless you can save them, they're gonners.

Flying your space fighter, you scour the planet's surface for your comrades; all the while the enemy is chasing you from the air, from the tops of mountains and from the ground. And just as the chase hots up, your mother ship warns that time is running out . . .

Rescue has been designed for teenagers with active, creative imaginations. It gives a first-person perspective on flying and rescue sequences. There are the usual increasing levels of difficulty.

The Great American Cross-Country Road Race offers far more challenge than the average game calling for fast driving reflexes. You are at the wheel, in true-to-life driving conditions for the most challenging, hair-raising sprint from coast to coast across the US.

First you consult your detailed map, deciding which of 25 cities you will drive through. You have to consider the terrain, time of day, distance between cities and recent weather reports.

And that's only the beginning! You have to weave through heavy taffic, watch you fuel levels, keep an eye out for radar traps and make repair stops. Your goal is to achieve the leading time . . . and see your name up there in lights.

Tour de France is much the same sort of game, except you do it on the other side of the Atlantic, and swap petrol for pushbike power. As a sports game, Tour is designed to test every level of your endurance.

The Litte Computer People Project Fact is, there's someone living inside EVERY computer. An amazing, interesting, wonderful human being (well, sort of) you probably never suspected existed.

After years of study, technical wizzardry and sheer patience, Activision has been able to lure them out in to the open. We do not know their names, or much about them just yet. But we do know they are real and that computer lovers of all ages will love having them around.

Living inside a small house on your screen, these tiny creatures lounge about, do chores, answer the telephone, watch television, play the stereo, dance, and best of all, provide lots of entertainment for their owners.

You can share in the day-to-day life of these little people as they go about their unpredictable way. The keyboard allows you to communicate in English with your new on-screen companion. But he does not always do as he's told!

It's a fascinating new world you are about to discover. Much more will be learned as you explore these great little creatures!

Hacker presents you with an opportunity to do what you probably have wanted to do all along . . . get inside a vast computer system that's plugged into a world of spies, secrets and international intrique.

It has been a long night with your computer and you're tired. You don't want to know what time it is. But before you sign off, you type some punch-drunk gibberish. As you reach for the power switch, you can't help but notice the official look of the admittance requirements on the screen. Admittance? Key words? What the hell have you hacked in to here?!

Still want to go to sleep? Not likely! You are about to crack something global. As you skirt danger and decipher mystery, one question keeps buzzing around your head: "Who ARE these guys?"

With Fast Tracks, slot car racing has never died. it has simply become computerised . . . and updated. These tracks never malfunction.

With this constructor set you can add flowers, dips, alternating curves. Construct the most outrageous and convoluted course, but remember that's only half the battle — you'll have to race on it next!

HAVE BABEL FISH — WILL TRAVEL

Hitchhikers Guide to the Galaxy is confusing, yet amazing. You take on the persona of Arthur Dent and watch your home being bulldozed, your planet demolished and yourself being threatened by the Ravenous Bugblatter Beast of Trail. But remember "Don't Panic". Just play on Hatchway.

You are at the bottom of a gangway. A hatch below you is closed. There is a small access space to starboard. The entrance is so narrow that you probably couldn't pass by holding anything. Well, maybe ONE thing.

Inventory

You have: no tea, a circuit board, a strange gun, a thing your aunt gave you which you don't know what it is, a pair of tweezers a babel fish (in your ear), The Hitchhikers Guide, an electronic Sub-Etha signalling device, a toothbrush, a flathead screwdriver.

Open Hatch

Loud sirens blare, fantastically bright red lights flash from all sides, and a soft female voice mentions that opening this hatch in space will evacuate air from the ship.

You feel a wave of depression sweep over you, and you turn to see that Marvin the robot has stalked miserably into the room.

Hitchhikers Guide, though, is anything but depressing!

BEACH-HEAD II PROMISES EVEN MORE ACTION

Following hot on the heels of last year's award-winning Beach-Head computer game, Access Software Inc has published a sequel — Beach-Head II.

Beach-Head II promises to be equally successful on our entertainment-hungry home market.

The concept behind the action-packed game is straightforward. J.P. Stryker, the young, fearless commander of the Allied forces takes on the bloodthirsty, power-crazed dictator, aptly named The Dragon.

Stryker's task is to free Allied prisoners held in The Dragon's fortress. In the process he had to reduce the bad guys to their knees while reducing their fortress to rubble.

The original Beach-Head won Chicago's Consumer Electronics Show Most Original Programming Award last year. But it lacked some of the bells and whistles Access has found time to incorporate in Beach-Head II.

The sequel features voice synthesis, multiple play screens and play levels, true head-to-head action, and sound effects.

Beach-Head II:
Commodore 64,
Commodore 128K-byte computer,
$34.95.
Commodore 64 (Cassette) $29.95.
